WHAT IS RAWHIDE?

Rawhide is a hide or animal skin that has not been exposed to tanning. It is similar to parchment, much lighter in color than leather made by traditional vegetable tanning.

The skin from buffalo, deer, elk or cattle from which most rawhide originates is prepared by removing all fur, meat and fat. The hide is then usually stretched over a frame before being dried. The resulting material is hard and translucent. It can be shaped by rewetting and forming before being allowed to thoroughly re-dry. It can be rendered more pliable by 'working', i.e. bending repeatedly in multiple directions, often by rubbing it over a post, sometimes traditionally by chewing. It may also be oiled or greased for a degree of waterproofing.

DEER RAWHIDE

55-40-SELB-AS

55-40-2N

Rawhide is stiff. When it is wetted, it can be worked. Beware of wetting any hide too long or it may fall apart. Hides are not guaranteed once worked.

White tail deer rawhide is ideal for making drums, rattles, and other crafts.

Our bleached hide is prepared in a light parchment color using a hydrogen peroxide treatment. You should be able to cut two 18-inch drum circles out of the select and #1 hide. The hides are approximately 45" to 50" long by 25" to 30" wide (across the middle). They are 0.75 mm to 1 mm thick. Sizes and thicknesses will vary. The thinner ones usually tend to be smaller.

Our natural rawhide is unbleached and has a darker brown tint. Its sound and strength is the same as the bleached, and it is more malleable than the bleached rawhide when wet. The Select natural grade have no holes in the center of the hide. There may be holes on the sides or top, but this do not interfere with cutting out a nice drum circle. The #1 to #4 hides are sorted based on the number and size of holes. See our website at www.chichesterinc.com for color pictures as well as sample measurements of hides measured at random. (Odocoileus virginianus, wild).

ELK RAWHIDE

We list two grades of elk rawhide for making drums, lamp shades, and other crafts. You can cut four 24-inch rounds from a #1 hide and three 24-inch rounds from a #2 hide. There may be holes or other defects. A typical hide is approximately 25 square feet and is rolled for shipping. Elk rawhide is thicker than deer rawhide and reindeer rawhide. (Cervus elaphus, ranch or wild).

HORSE RAWHIDE

The fibers on horse rawhide are tighter and smoother than on cow rawhide. Even though horse rawhide tends to be lighter than cow rawhide, the horse rawhide is stronger. The hides are 2- to 4-ounce weight and may have butcher cuts on one side. They average 24 and 30 square feet. The rawhide measures approximately 62" to 72" long down the middle, 30" wide across the neck, 62" wide across the middle, and 69" wide across the bottom. We measured one horse rawhide to be 69" long, 33" wide at the neck, 50" wide across the middle and 57" wide at the bottom. (Equus caballus, ranch).

REINDEER RAWHIDE

55-80L

We offer very clean, high-quality reindeer rawhide. Average lengths as well as width across the shoulders, width across the middle, and width across the bottom are shown in the pricing table. Sizes may vary slightly from skin to skin. The skins are approximately 1/16" thick for all sizes. They are ideal for making Shaman drums. We offer shaman drum frames from Finland elsewhere in this catalog. This rawhide is very thin compared with elk rawhide. We also offer dyed reindeer rawhide in blue and brown. (Rangifer tarandus, ranch).

The Swedish reindeer rawhides are some of the best quality we have seen anywhere in the world. The Swedish rawhides tend to be a milky creamy color compared to the Finnish ones which are more transparent and blotchy. You won't find large holes or significant imperfections. The medium size hides are approximately 9 to 11 square feet. (Rangifer tarandus, ranch).

STINGRAY RAWHIDE

55-100-G01

The cowtail stingray rawhide is professionally prepared in Thailand. The hide is very stiff and feels like sandpaper. A bag of shell is shown in the picture holding part of the hide flat. Stingray rawhide is frequently used for making Japanese sword handles. Each piece is unique and available in our gallery on the website. Cowtail stingrays are not endangered. (Pastinachus sephen, wild).
