

5260-5 Porcupine Hair & Quills

AFRICAN PORCUPINE HAIR

The African porcupine hair is about 12" to 18" in length and is thicker than that of the North American porcupine. Some people find it suitable for making roaches in the Native American market while some find it too thick. We do not sort by size. (Hystrix africaeaustralis, wild).

AFRICAN PORCUPINE QUILLS

The #1 or A-grade quills are nice and thick and sold by length. The tips are good and the quills do not have any significant damage. The ultra thin quills are thinner than the regular quills, but thicker than the porcupine hair. They come in assorted sizes. The white quills are completely white or have a bit of black. If you need specific sizes in ultra thin quills or white ones, let us know and we will see if we can sort them for you. The B-grade quills may be bent, flattened, have broken ends, or otherwise flawed. They tend to have a stubby end instead of a sharp point, may have a more muted brown and white coloring instead of crisp black and white, and are often not as clean as the A-grade or #1 quills. This grade is what most other firms sell as A-grades. They are sorted into thick and thin quills. They are ideal for cutting into small pieces or for use as is. (Hystrix africaeaustralis, wild).
